

Physical Therapy

Pediatric Physical Therapists work to improve a child's gross motor skills (everyday activities that use the body's large muscle groups) which allow the child to reach their full functional potential and highest level of independence.

Specialty evaluations and interventions are provided for the following areas:

- Musculoskeletal conditions
- Orthopedic conditions
- Neuromuscular conditions
- Gross motor developmental assessments
- Coordination and balance training
- Mobility training
- Motor planning
- Endurance
- Adaptive equipment assessment and training
